The Government's Cyber Security Breaches Survey 2023* estimates that, across all UK businesses, there were approximately 2.39 million instances of cyber crime and approximately 49,000 instances of fraud as a result of cyber crime in the last 12 months.

Is your business one of the many organisations who still do not have cyber insurance cover?

When you consider that cyber insurance policies start from only £50 per annum (plus tax and insurance fees) for micro and SME businesses turning over less than £100,000 a year, there's no reason not to give your organisation the cyber protection it needs.

Find out how little it might cost to protect your company from the damaging effects of a cyber-attack by talking to one of the friendly team at Prizm Solutions.

What is cyber insurance?

Cyber insurance is a policy designed to protect a person, business or organisation in the event of a cyber-hack or data breach.

Cyber criminals can attack all sizes of organisations, including small businesses, as some hackers see them as an easier target. Hackers realise that not all small business owners have cyber protection in place, and sometimes, hacking a small business may open doors for the hackers to gain entry to larger organisations.

Cyber criminals aren't always hackers - sometimes they might be ex-employees or other people with a grudge, who use cyber-crime to cause problems for a business.

That's why, in today's world, no business should be without cyber insurance.

The risks are just too great. (Especially when the price of cover is relatively low).
